approaches. Hague, June 8. The States of Holland and West Frizeland, assembled yesterday and this day; after which they published a very strong report against the proceedings of some English ships, inviolating the territory of the Republic, by taking a French privateer near the island of Goree; they concluded with a resolution to realize the state of the they concluded with a refolution to reclaim the faid privateer in the most ferious manner, and to demand of his Britannic Majesty suitable satisfaction for this unwarrantable conduct of his fubjects. Leiden, Jane 9. A velled from Boston arrived at Cadiz, on the 10th of May, but brings no other news concerning Charlestown, than that she learnt by a Brigantine from Bermudas, that three of the largest thips of war belonging to General Clinton's convoy, perished in their passage to the Savannah. What gives some appearance of truth to this report is, that it is not known what is become of the Robuste of 74 guns, and the Europe and Reasonable of 64 guns each, which made a part of Admiral Arbuthnot's squadron, at his departure from New York. To this is to be added, that when the British Ministry published the dispatches relative to the Carolina expedition, they took care to suppress those from Admiral Arbuthnor. Leiden Gazette.

L O N D O N.

This morning some dispatches were received from Admiral Geary, which are dated off Plymouth.

The mails for Holland, France, and Flanders, are stop-ped on account of not letting our enemies know of the late riots in this city.

No buliness was transacted yesterday in the House of Peers, nor will any thing be done in either of the Houses till Monday. We hear that Mr Alderman Wilkes has received the thanks of the Privy Council, for his active and spirited exertions as a Magistrate during the late riots.

It is faid that some dispatches have arrived from Sir Jofeph Yorke, intimating that a fpy has been fecured at the Hague, who has laid open the projected plan of the troubles which have lately taken place in this kingdom.

Many letters from abroad confirm the prophecy of the Ambassador at the Hague, concerning the burning of London, and that it had been spoke of publicly both in France and Holland.

It has been discovered that a confiderable sum of French money has been distributed amongst the ringleaders of the late outrages. Three of them, it is faid, have declared that they had received thirty guineas each, and were to have as much more when their work was completed.

This day, by order of the Lord Mayor, an Alderman fat at Guildhall from nine to twelve, another from twelve to three, and a third from three to fix, for the purpole of examining such persons as might be apprehended, on suspicion of having been concerned in the late diffurbances.

Warrants were last night issued, by the Lord Mayor, to every constable in the several wards of this city, for apprehending and taking into custody all persons that are found in the fireets after ten o'clock at might, who cannot give a good account of themselves, and to search public houses, and houses of bad repute, to take into cuttody all idle and disorderly persons that are found tipling therein.

A certain magistrate, upon being examined by the Privy Council, is faid to have apologised for himself in the following words:—My Lords, I was attacked behind and before, and felt such a temerity, that I thought instant death would be my potion."

Mr Solicitor General Wallace is appointed his Majesty's Attorney General in the room of Lord Loughbrough, and Mr Mansfield succeeds to the Solicitorship. They are ex-pected to kiss hands at the next levee on their respective promotions.

Sunday morning, his Majefty, attended by Lord Am-herst and several of the nobility, took a survey of the camp that is formed in St James's Park, at which he expressed great fatisfaction.

The Earl of Mansfield and his lady have apartments at St James's, by order of his Majesty, where they will continue till the present disturbances are entirely ceased.

We are happy to inform the public, that one good confequence has arrien out of the late dreadful calamity, a tho-rough reconciliation has taken place between the King and his brothers. The Dakes of Gloucester and Cumberland, on the first serious appearance of the riots, fent the most af-fectionate tender of their services to their brother; which was received in a becoming way; in confequence of which they had separate audiences, and a friendly conserence with his Majesty on Saturday. His Roya! Flighness the Duke of Gloucetter attends constantly on the parade, and does duty with his regiment.

After Lord George Gordon had been conveyed to the Horse Guards, he remained there some hours, before the Secretaries of State came to examine him. He appeared perfectly calm and easy 2 and only faid, that what he done was from the best of motives; that he did not motives; that he did not the warmth of his friends would have gone fo far; and that he did not apprehend that any of the bad confequences which had been committed by the other perfous were imputable to him. He made no other defence. The Secretaries of State, about ten o'clock, committed him a close prifoner to the Tower.

Sunday his Lordship was not suffered to go to the chapel, neither was he permitted to have the use of pen, ink or paper. The Tower gates were kept thut, and two Wardens placed at the wicket to examine that none but inhabitants or their friends were admitted. The Governor, attended by the officers and principal inhabitants, went in proded by the others and principal innabitants, went in pro-ceffion to the chapel through a lane of foldiers that were drawn up on each fide. The unual Chaplaid (Mr. Feather-ftone) did not officiate, but the fermon was preached by one of the King's Chaplains, from Acts xvii. 22, 23. In the afternoon the gates were kept flux, and at once, o'clock the keys were taken to the Observant. the keys were taken to the Osvernor.

The Tower gates are utually focked up every night at eleven o'clock; and when a State prisoner is in the Tower, it is customerly to faut them at tea; but they have been fint every night fince Lord George Gordon, has been there at nine or half past nine o'clock at the farthest.

On Saturday morning his Lordship was removed from the house of the Governor, General Gore, to that occupied by Alderman Crofby when he was a prifoner. Mr Boquet, Mr Burford, and Mr Foden, Yeomen, or Wardens, were appointed to attend him, and a centinel was placed at the door of house.

Previous to his Lordship's examination, a horse pistol was found upon him, which was taken away, as was also his word, both which he had brought from his house.

The same morning, about five o'clock, Mr Fisher, Secretary to the Protestant Association, was apprehended at his house in Goulston-square, Whitechapel, by Justice Staples, and was carried to the Tower, escorted by a grong guard. under the direction of Lord Fielding, and fixed a prisoner in the house of Mr Kinghorne, gentleman goaler, where he remained until the evening, when he was conveyed in a hackney coach, attended by Mr Boquet, one of the wardens before mentioned, to the Secretary of State's office, where a Privy Council was sitting. Mr Fisher underwent a long expension and the secretary of State's office, where a private of the secretary of state's office, where a private of the secretary of state's office, where a private of the secretary of state's office, where a private of the secretary of states of the secretary of amination, but nothing appearing prejudicial either to his character, the Committee, or Affociation, he was honourably difmiffed, and the Warden returned home without him.

No persons whatever are permitted to visit Lord George Gordon in the Tower; his brother Lord William, and a friend with him, are faid to have been there on Sunday laft; his Lordship appeared at the window of his apartment, from which a reciprocal falute took place.

The proceedings against a certain Lord now in custody, in the Tower, will, it is whispered, be by articles of impeachment preferred against him in the House of Commons, as a Member, for unlawful proceedings in furmsoning meetings contrary to common ulage, and the statute in such cales made and provided.

On Saturday fome of the Committee belonging to the Protestant Association waited on Lord North, and were politely received, offering, if they had done any thing contrary to the laws of this realm, to refign themselves up; and we are happy to find his Lordship told them, no charges whatever were defigned to be brought against either the Secretary, the Committee, or the Affociation. This, it is hoped, will help to abate the wrath that has been poured on the Affociators in general. They also shewed his Lord-ship the copy of a letter, designed to be printed, setting the matter in a true light, and which received his Lordship's approbation.

We are happy to find, on a ftrict enquiry, that the loss of lives by the necessary interposition of the military, does not exceed 56.—Near 300 of the rioters are already secured, who will be tried next week before the special Commis-

It is aftonishing to think that fo small a number of men should have been guilty of so much mischief, and capable of putting the metropolis into so thorough a consternation. It is faid, that there were not more fifty men concerned in fetting fire to the Fleet prison, and not a hundred in the deftruction of Newgate.

Extraft of a letter from London, June 13.

"You will not, I dare fay, be unhappy to hear, that we are now without any news whatfoever. The tumults feem to have totally ceafed, and common reason has again assumed her empire. There are, however, still some among us who have so far lost themselves, as to rebel against that empress; but their temerity and madness will, there is little doubt, lead them to their destruction. A person of some consequence in the medical world, though not a regular physician, was this evening conveyed to prison by a strong party of Guards; on suspicion of having been an active promoter of the last insurable. evening conveyed to prison by a strong party of Guards, on superior of having been an active promoter of the late insurrection. Many of of having been an active promoter of the late injurrection. Many of the roters are almost hourly apprehended, and there now appears a tolerable prospect of rescuing the Protestant religion from that infamous stigma which those persons who called themselves Protestant affecting the processing of the protestant affects of the protestant affects of the protestant affects of the process of the protestant affects of the protestant affe mous frigma which those persons who called themselves Profigant ap-fociators, had near fixed on it.

"The conduct of some gentlemen in opposition, during the riots at the Houses of Parliament, is not a little curious. In order to carry to perfection that animosity which they once flattered themselves with to perfection that animolity which they once flattered themfelves with having raifed between this country and yoars, if I may be allowed fact a diffinction, they very industriously attempted to impress the public with an idea, as improbable as it was impolitio—that the riots which we have of late experienced, were produced by a Scots mob, as they were pleased to term it, because they were headed by a Scots faraite. The illiberality of this affertion must at once render its phopagators obnoxious to every thinking mind, and produce a fovereign contempt for the men who are for are lost to every fense of loyalty, as to endeavour, as this perilous moment especially, to create national difford and in-the men who are so far lost to every sense of loyalty, as to engravour, at this perilous moment especially, to create national distord and investeracy, by a declaration so groundless, so rationloss, and so abserd. To contend, that because a Scotiman was at the head of an association instituted in London, from which the tumults originated, the actors in the tumults must also be Scots, is a piece of logic which none but a modern patriot could surely have made use of, and which I think in the contravent to contravent.

but a modern parror could inrely have made use or, and which I think requires no argument to controvert.

'The trial of Lord George Gordon, it is believed, will come on either on Tuesday or Wednesday next. The public curiouty is very great with respect to the sate of that noble Lord; and although some, who suppose his Lordship to have been the intentional cause of our confusions, are much prejudiced against him, yet the greater part of the fusions, are much prejudiced against him, yet the greater part of the town seem to lament the present situation of a man, whose general conduct has not only been undeserving confure, but amiable.

"A letter from an English gentleman at Paris, dated June 7. and received yesterday, has the following paragraph: "I rejoice at the success of my friend Rodney. By the Gazette of France of yesterday in angular that the distributes of the Counte de Guichen are not yet. it appears, that the dipatches of the Comte de Guichen are not yet come to hand." This, both from the date and manner of exprellion, must allude to some later action than that which was the subject of the last extraordinary Gazette.

The spirit of destructive imitation hath spread itself rapidly from your city to ours. Aroused by this behaviour, the magilirates and some of our citizens interposed their authority, but without any effect. The Bath Volunteers also drew up in our defence, to as little purpose; for by this time the rabble was too numerous and firece to brook the feetble opposition of a few undisciplined foung persons; and a man being that near some of the ringleaders, it was impossible to appeale their sary. They immediately let fire to the shell of the chapel, and to a whole range of contiguous buildings, all of which were reduced to the bare walls before two o'clock in the morning. After this they remained fillent spectators of this horris seen, and seemed to gaze upon it with a favage joy. The inhabitants and they have fettled the feveral arrangements of the night with great prudence, and all feems to promife us a return of good order and tranquillity; but I will keep this letter unclofed, fo long as the post will admit, that you may receive the latest information; for every county account becomes now of confequence to the nation, whose true state should be transmitted to the metropolis. I must not forget to let you know, that a very well-in-tehtioned, dispassionate, and humane hand-bill, by way of address to the multitude, has been distributed since noon, and is now in every one's hand, and was just now read aloud in the market-place. TO THE PEOPLE.

Christians, Fellow-Protestants, and Fellow-Creatures,
With tears in my eyes, with a trembling hand, and a deeplyinstitute heart, I sit down to address you. I glory in the Protestant perinciples, and, if I were seriously called upon, would shed, like you, and last drop of my blood in their desence. But I am a lover of all the the last drop of my blood in their defence. But I am a lover of all the human race; and know that our gracious Gon, who is a Gon of PEACE, has connected me with the happines and westrare of all Mankind; though we are, alas! too much divided amongst ourselves, in point of opinion. I wish we were all of one mind; but as that caunot be, let us have mercy upon one anabler. My fellow-creatures, I implore you to consider what some of you are about. It is not the destruction of a few public places that are obnoxious to you, which closes this Sene of sury and devastation. Your friends, your relations, helples children, decrepid old men, women in travail, and citizens, whose since the objects of your resemment, objects which never did you wrong, nor even opposed your religious sentiments.

"Last night, O Friends, fire and murder went hand in hand. I will never believe there was any predesioned intention to still blood.

will never believe there was any predefigned intention to fpill blood, in any one of your hearts—for, are you not Englishmen? And, I am in any one of your nearts—for, are you not Englishmen? And, I am very fare, it grieved the most exasperated of you, to fee the poor affrighted people run along the streets with their pittances of property, attended by their shricking wives and weeping children, who were neeffitated, on account of your unprovoked displeasure, to feek for a night's lodging where-ever the hand of Charity could bestow it. Here is a sensation for a British bosom!

"Nor is this the worst—"
Our distraction we home greater feel science best of the contraction.

"Our diffraction at home creates fresh triumphs abroad. Our natural enemies behold us doing their work, and butchering each other, with a smile. Let them alone (say these scorers) and they will cut their own throats, when we shall take possession of their boasted empire, without once unsheathing our swords.—Nor King nor people will be safe: even our gracious Sovereign and the religion which he is born to suppose the control of the source of the same and work. This belowed respite, whose faces privileges, and to support, and you, his beloved people, whose facred privileges and principles he has in charge, may tumble into dust and ashes, like the buildings which were consumed last night, if you go on. Stop, then; in the awful name of the Omnipotent Gon, who looks on every action, stop. Leave him to fettle the great account of religious justice—Let us not presume to firstch from his mighty arm the bolts of venerates. nee. Let us rather pray that those whom we may think wrong, to be set right; but let us not take on ourselves the Divine authority, will pity, but not punish. We will direct our zeal into the prochannel. Our haughty soes shall feel its generous force—we per channel. Our haughty foes shall feel its generous torce—we will—

"But I need not enlarge upon it—the ruins of the night are, to be fure, shocking. There is not one of you, sellow Protestants, who can behold them this morning without a weeping eye and akeing heart. The Saviour who sealed our pardon by his precious blood, despites not the forrow of your contrite spirits. His heavenly Father sees how much you are grieved. He is looking down upon you; he sees that all is again still; and he will contrive, in his own good time, to repair the injuries of those whom you have driven from their late peaceful habitations.

"Christians, we will henceforward deserve the name. The Almighty will punish those who disgrace him. Be it ours to do him hoour in the humility of our hearts. We will serve our King, and raise our wretched country to what it lately was—the pride and envy of the universe—without bloodshed, without rage, or any other deadly sin.

"This is, I know, your resolution—God will bless you for it—You have wives, children, friends. They shall all be blessed, and I shall not only glory in owning you for Protestants, but should die too happy were I too fall the moment the public tranquility was established, could I but statter myself, in the remotest, manner, that it was brought about by the means of this address; being sincerely, and without bousting,

A Christian, Protestant, Lover of his Kind, and Honest Man."

Yesterday morning, about three o'clock, the inhabitants of the New Town were greatly alarmed by repeated reports of musquetry. Upon enquiry, it was found, that fome soldiers, who had been called from the Abbey guard, by some Excise officers, in order to assist them in seizing smuggled goods, of which they had received information, were in purfuit of a man upon horseback, whom they alledged was a smuggler, and at whom they fired several times, having chaced him the whole length of Prince's street, but without effect. Previous to this, whether through accident or defign, we have not been able to learn, they shot a horse, which had been made fait to a place at the north end of the Bridge, where he was allowed to lie, in the greatest agony, during the whole of this day, owing to the owner not chu-fing to meddle with him, left those who had given orders to fire might alledge he had killed the horfe himelf. We do not pretend to say, how far the Excise officers were justifia-ble in ordering the military to fire at all; but we cannot help thinking, that, to fay no worfe, it was highly impro-per not to use more caution in a populous city, where many pallengers, or people looking out of the windows, in orto discover the reason of the firing, might have been killed, while there could be no great chance of a party on foot coming up with a man who was galloping from them at full speed.

Don Christoval Dias Villare-al. She had left New-York the 31st of March last with the packets, and feveral passengers for Falmouth. This Cap tain, Don Robert, had been pilot of the Guernfey, an English man of war of 64 guns, which, with another ship of the line of 74, and four frigates from 20 to 34 guns, were retiring to New-York, under the command of Francis Samuel Drake.

Cadiz, May 15. An American vessel arrived here yester-day, in 32 days, from Boston. The Captain reports, that the English had destroyed some forts and advanced posts at New York, and that a great part of the garrison had failed on a fecret expedition.

Toulon, May 23. The last letters from Tripoli bring advice, that a violent civil war rages in that regency, where. a new pretender to the dignity of B.y wants to dethrone the present possessor of that ritle. When the accounts came away, the armies of the two Beys were in fight, and the Franks, who are always the first victims in these insurrections, were retiring with their most valuable effects.

Anglerdam, Jane 8. An American thip is just arrived in the Texel, which failed from Boston the 2d of May. Letters brought by her give an account, " That the Marquis de la Fayette lafely arrived there on the 28th of April, The failors also report, "That M. de Ternay was expected from at Boston; which serves to clear up some doubts relative to the real place of the deftination of his fquadron." They moreover add, "That, at the time of their departure, Charleftown was not only abundantly supplied with every thing necessary for a long resistance, but also, that General Clinton had not then begun the siege, nor even made any approaches.

Hague, June 8. The States of Holland and West Frize-land, assembled yesterday and this day; after which they published a very strong report against the proceedings of some English ships, in violating the territory of the Repub-ling by taking a Franch product of Conduct of lic, by taking a French privateer near the island of Gorce; they concluded with a refolution to reclaim the faid privateer in the most ferious manner, and to demand of his Britannic Majesty suitable satisfaction for this unwarrantable conduct of his fubjects. Leiden, Jane 9. A vellet from Boston arrived at Cadiz, on the 10th of May, but brings no other news concerning Charlestown, than that the learnt by a Brigantine from Ber-mudas, that three of the largest ships of war belonging to General Clinton's convoy, perished in their passage to the Savannah. What gives some appearance of truth to this report is, that it is not known what is become of the Robuste of 74 guns, and the Europe and Reasonable of 64 guns which made a part of Admiral Arbuthnot's fquadron, at his departure from New-York. To this is to be added, that when the British Ministry published the dispatches relative to the Carolina expedition, they took care to suppress those from Admiral Arbuthnot. Leiden Gazette.

LONDON.

This morning some dispatches were received from Admiral Geary, which are dated off Plymouth.

The mails for Holland, France, and Flanders, are stop-ped on account of not leating our enemies know of the late riots in this city. I the House of the business was transacted yesterday in the House of the Houses Peers, nor will any thing be done in either of the Houses till Monday. We hear that Mr Alderman Wilkes has received the thanks of the Privy Council, for his active and spirited exertions as a Magistrate during the late riots.

It is faid that some dispatches have arrived from Sir Jofeph Yorke, intimating that a fpy has been secured at the Hague, who has laid open the projected plan of the troubles which have lately taken place in this kingdom.

Many letters from abroad confirm the prophecy of the French Ambassador at the Hague, concerning the burning of London, and that it had been spoke of publicly both in France and Holland.

It has been discovered that a confiderable sum of French money has been diffributed amongst the ringleaders of the late outrages. Three of them, it is faid, have declared that they had received thirty guineas each, and were to have as much more when their work was completed.

This day, by order of the Lord Mayor, an Alderman fat at Guildhall from the to twelve, another from twelve to three, and a third from three to fix, for the purpole of examining fuch persons as might be apprehended, on suspicion of having been concerned in the late disturbances.

Warrants were last night issued, by the Lord Mayor, to every constable in the several wards of this city, for apprehending and taking into custody all persons that are f in the firects after ten o'clock at might, who cannot give a good account of themselves, and to search public houses, and houses of bad repute, to take into cuttody all idle and diforderly persons that are found tipling therein.

A certain magistrate, upon being examined by the Privy Council, is faid to have apologised for himself in the following words:—My Lords, I was attacked behind and before, and felt such a temerity, that I thought instant death would be my potion."

Mr Solicitor General Wallace is appointed his Majesty's Attorney General in the room of Lord Loughborough, and Mr Mansfield fucceeds to the Solicitorship. They are ex-They are expected to kiss hands at the next levee on their respective promotions.

Sunday morning, his Majefly, attended by Lord Am-herst and several of the nobility, took a survey of the camp that is formed in St James's Park, at which he expressed great fatisfaction.

The Earl of Mansfield and his lady have apartments at St James's, by order of his Majesty; where they will continue till the present disturbances are entirely ceased.

We are happy to inform the public, that one good confequence has arilen out of the late dreadful calamity, a thorough reconciliation has taken place between the King and his brothers. The Dukts of Gloucester and Cumberland, on the first serious appearance of the riots, fent the most af-fectionate tender of their services to their brother, which was received in a becoming way; in confequence of which they had separate audiences, and a friendly conserence with his Majesty on Saturday. His Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucetter attends constantly on the parade, and does duty with his regiment.

After Lord George Gordon had been conveyed to the Horse Guards, he remained there some hours, before the Secretaries of State came to examine him. He appeared perfectly calm and easy and only faid, that what he had motive the warmth of his friends would have gone fo far; and that he did not apprehend that any of the bad confequences which had been committed by the other perfous were imputable to him. He made no other defence. The Secretaries of State, about ten o'clock, committed him a close prifoner to the Tower.

Sunday his Lordship was not suffered to go to the chapel, neither was he permitted to have the use of pen, ink or paper. The Tower gates were kept thut, and two Wardens placed at the wicket to examine that none but inhabitants or their friends were admitted. The Governor, attended by the officers and principal inhabitants, went in proded by the officers and principal inhabitants, went in procession to the chapel through a lane of foldiers that were drawn up on each fide. The unual Chaplaia (Mr Featherstone) did not officiate, but the fermon was preached by one of the King's Chaplaina, from Acts 2011, 223, 23, In the afternoon the gates were kept flut, and at muc. Sclook the keys were taken for the Convergence. the keys were taken to the Governor.

The Tower gates are ulually focked up every night at eleven o'clock; and when, a State prisoner is in the Tower, it is customery to that them at ten; but they have been that every night fince Lord George Gordon has been there at nine or half past nine o'clock at the farthest.

On Saturday morning his Lordship was removed from the house of the Governor, General Gore, to that occupied by Alderman Croiby when he was a prisoner. Mr Boquet, Mr Burford, and Mr Foden, Yeomen, or Wardens, were appointed to attend him, and a centinel was placed at the door of house.

Previous to his Lordship's examination, a horse pistol was found upon him, which was taken away, as was also his fword, both which he had brought from his house.

The same morning, about five o'clock, Mr Fisher, Secre-tary to the Protestant Association, was apprehended at his house in Goulston-square, Whitechapel, by Justice Staples, and was carried to the Tower, escorted by a Grong guard, under the direction of Lord Fielding, and fixed a prisoner in the house of Mr Kinghorne, gentleman goaler, where he remained until the evening, when he was conveyed in a hackney coach, attended by Mr Boquet, one of the wardens before mentioned, to the Secretary of State's office, where a Privy Council was fitting. Mr Fisher underwent a long examination, but nothing appearing prejudicial either to his character, the Committee, or Affociation, he was honourably difmiffed, and the Warden returned home without him. No persons whatever are permitted to visit Lord George Gordon in the Tower; his brother Lord William, and a friend with him, are faid to have been there on Sunday laft; his Lordship appeared at the window of his apartment, from which a reciprocal falute took place.

The proceedings against a certain Lord now in custody, in the Tower, will, it is whispered, be by articles of impeachment preferred against him in the House of Commons, as a Member, for unlawful proceedings in furmaoning meet-ings contrary to common ulage, and the statute in such cases made and provided.

On Saturday fome of the Committee belonging to the Protestant Association waited on Lord North, and were politely received, offering, if they had done any thing contrary to the laws of this realm, to refign themselves up; and we are happy to find his Lordship told them, no charges whatever were defigned to be brought against either the Secretary, the Committee, or the Affociation. This, it is hoped, will help to abate the wrath that has been poured on the Associators in general. They also shewed his Lord-ship the copy of a letter, designed to be printed, setting the matter in a true light, and which received his Lordship's ap-

41 You will not, I dare say, be unhappy to hear, that we are now without any news whatsoever. The tumults seem to have totally ceased, without any news whatfoever. The tumults feem to have totally ceased, and common reason has again assumed her empire. There are, however, still some among us who have so far lost themselves, as to rebel against that empress; but their temerity and madness will, there is little doubt, lead them to their destruction. A person of some consequence in the medical world, though not a regular physician, was this evening conveyed to prison by a strong party of Guards, on subjiction of having been an active promoter of the late insurrection. Many of the rioters are almost hourly apprehended, and there now appears a tolerable prospect of rescuing the Protestant religion from that infamous stigma which those persons who called themselves Protestant of sociators, had near fixed on it.

In order to carry to perfection that animosity which they once stattered themselves with having raifed between this country and yours, if I may be sllowed fach having raised between this country and yours, it I may be allowed uses a distinction, they very industriously attempted to impress the public with an idea, as improbable as it was impolitic—that the riots which we have of late experienced, were produced by a Scots mob, as they were pleased to term it, because they were headed by a Scots fanatic. at this perilous moment especially, to create national distord and inveteracy, by a declaration so groundles, so raticulous, and so abourd.
To contend, that because a Scotsman was at the head of an association instituted in London, from which the tumults originated, the actors in the tumults must also be Scots, is a piece of logic which none

The spirit of destructive imitation hath spread itself rapidly from your city to ours. A number of disorderly persons assembled last night about twilight, and increasing their force as they went forward, of formed a body of several hundred people before nine o'clock in the evening; at which time they beset the new Roman Catholic chapel, a very elegant building in the first the new Roman Catholic chapel, a both is meaning of the Roman Catholic minister adjoining; and throwing the furniture, even to the wantcotting, out into the street, set it on fire. Catholic families; but at the execution of this threat I hope they be prevented; for three troops of brave-looking fellows are matched to our affiftance. The inhabitants and they have fettled the feveral strangements of the night with great prudence, and all feems to promife us a return of good order and tranquillity; but I will keep this letter unclofed, so long as the post will admit, that you may receive the latest information; for every county account becomes now of confequence to the nation, whose true state should be transmitted to the metropolis. I must not forget to let you know, that a very well-intentioned, dispassionate, and humane hand-bill, by way of address to the multitude, has been distributed since noon, and is now in every one's hand, and was just now read aloud in the market-place. It seems to affist the authority of the military, and is written so universally to all parts of this dislocated empire, that I send a copy for your perusal.

TO THE PEOPLE.

Christians, Fellow-Protestants, and Fellow-Greatures,

With tears in my eyes, with a trembling hand, and a deeply-inficted heart, I sit shown to address you. I glory in the Protestant parinciples, and, if I were feriously called upon, would shed, like you, she last drop of my blood in their desence. But I am a lover of all the human race; and know that our gracious God, who is a God of PEACE, has connected me with the happiness and wessare of all Markind; though we are, alas! too much divided amongst ourselves, in point of opinion. I wish we were all of one mind; but as that caunot be, let us have mercy upon one another. My fellow-creatures, I implore you to consider what some of you are about. It is not the destruction of a few public places that are obnoxious to you, which closes this seene of sury and devastation. Your friends, your relations, helpless children; decrepid old men, women in travail, and citizens, whose schildren; decrepid old men, women in travail, and citizens, whose schildren; decrepid old men, women in travail, and citizens

"Our distruction at home creates fresh triumphs abroad. Our natural enemies behold us doing their work, and butchering each other, with a smile. Let them alone (say these scorers) and they will cut their own throats, when we shall take possession of their boasted empire, without once unsheathing our swords.—Nor King nor people will be faste: even our gracious Sovereign and the religion which he is born to support, and you, his beloved people, whose facred privileges and principles he has in charge, may tumble into dust and ashes, like the buildings which were consumed last night, if you go on. Stop, then; in the awful name of the Omnipotent God, who looks on every action, flop. Leave him to settle the great account of religious justice—Let us not presume to smetch from his mighty arm the bolts of vengeance. Let us rather pray that those whom we may think wrong, may be set right; but let us not take on ourselves the Divine authority. We will pity, but not punish. We will direct our zeal into the proper channel. Our haughty soes shall feel its generous force—we will—

"But I need not enlarge upon it—the ruins of the night are, to be fure, thocking. There is not one of you, fellow Protestants, who can behold them this morning without a weeping eye and akeing heart. The Saviour who fealed our pardon by his precious blood, despites not the forrow of your contrite spirits. His heavenly Father sees how nuch you are grieved. He is looking down upon you; he sees that all is again still; and he will contrive, in his own good time, to repair tac injuries of those whom you have driven from their late peaceful the injuries of those whom habitations.

"Christians, we will henceforward deferve the name.

"Christians, we will henceforward deferve the name.

"Christians, we will henceforward deferve the name.

"The state our King.

"Christians, we will henceforward deferve the name. The Almighty will punish those who difgrace him. Be it ours to do him homour in the humility of our hearts. We will ferve our King, and raise our wretched country to what it lately was—the pride and envy of the universe—without bloodshed, without rage, or any other deadly sin.

"This is, I know, your resolution—God will bles your for it—You have wives, children, friends. They shall all be blessed, and I shall not only glory in owning you for Protestants, but should die too happy were I so fall the moment the public tranquility was established, could I but statter myself, in the remotest manner, that it was brought about by the means of this address; being sincerely, and without boasting.

A Christian, Protestant, Lover of his Kind, and Honess Man."

"P. S. All is serene and quiet; so farewell."

P. S. All is ferene and quiet; fo farewell."

Most of the papers in this town have announced the departure of the Duke of Gordon to London. We can, however, affure the public, that this is not the cafe, his Grace being at prefent doing duty with his regiment in Clasgow. We are informed, that his Excellency General Mackay, Commander in Chief of the forces in Scotland, has received the fame powers for quelling any tumults or riots in this country, as those with which Lord Amherst is vested in England.

The 7th regiment, or Queen's dragoons, will be reviewed in a field near Invereft, on Wednesday first, by his Excellency Lieutenant-General Mackay.

ledgarno, Efq; Yesterday morning, about three o'clock, the inhabitants of the New Town were greatly alarmed by repeated reports of musquetry. Upon enquiry, it was found, that some sol-diers, who had been called from the Abbey guard, by some Excise officers, in order to ashift them in seizing smuggled goods, of which they had received information, were in purfuit of a man upon horseback, whom they alledged was a fmuggler, and at whom they fired feveral times, having chaced him the whole length of Prince's ftreet, but without effect. Previous to this, whether through accident or defign, we have not been able to learn, they shot a horse, ch had been made fast to a Bridge, where he was allowed to lie, in the greatest agony, during the whole of this day, owing to the owner not chu-fing to meddle with him, lest those who had given orders to fire might alledge he had killed the horfe himelf. We do not pretend to fay, how far the Excise officers were justifia-ble in ordering the military to fire at all; but we cannot help thinking, that, to fay no worfe, it was highly improper not to use more caution in a populous city, where many passengers, or people looking out of the windows, in or-der to discover the reason of the firing, might have been killed, while there could be no great chance of a party on foot coming up with a man who was galloping from them at full speed.

Thefe lands, pleafantly fitnated by the river Tyne, within half a mile of Haddington, and twelve miles of Edinburgh, abound with all the natural beauties that wood and water can affoud. They hold blench of the Crown, fland valued in the cefts-books at 520 L 14 s. 2 d. Scots, and entitle the proprietor to wote for, or be elected member of Parliament for the county. The proprietor has allo right to the teinds.
Upon the premises is a genteel manion-house, lately built, not yet finished within, confishing of nine sire-rooms, besides the sunk and garret storeys.—The Garden, containing sour acres of sine sich soil, is well stocked with fruit-trees of the best kinds, and partly surrounded by a brick wall ten seet high, and through the whole length of the garden rans a canal of sine clear water, sources seet broad.

The several milus on the claste were lately built, and stred up in a most substantial manner.—The new mila, credted within these ten years at a very considerable expense, contains machinery for a meal, flour, and tarley mile, and was at sirst let at 40 l. per annum, although, owing to the present general stagnation in trade, it is sust now set at 10 l.
But, as the lease on this milu expires a year hence, a considerable rise, if not the old mut, may be expected. By tack on the doveced-shot, the rent thereof rises 3 l. a-year for the last nine years of the lease.

The planting on the clate is of considerable value. The timber sit for cutting was by a person of skill climate two years ago at about 500 l. Sterling, besides some young planting which is in a thriving condition.——Some of the lands are prefently out of lease, the greatest Scotland.

About 80 acres of the lands are prefently out of leafe, the greatest gait whereof are let below 10 s. per acre, and about 50 l. a-year below what the last tackiman paid for them. But, as these lands, and the whole estate, are immunded with coal and lime, and are so much in the vicinity of Haddington, where there is great command of dung, they are capable of the highest improvement; and there is no doubt, upon a lease, but these lands presently in the proprietor's possession will set at their former, if not an advanced rent.—This estate, about nine years ago sold for 1400 l. above the present speet price.
